SHY OF THE DEPTH are a technical metal band based in Brighton, UK

Composing began in 2006 with guitarists Joe Grouse and James Davis concocting progressive riff after progressive riff, for drummer Chris Allen and vocalist Eddie B to lay down their styles to.

An accomplished bassist who could keep up with how the band were evolving was proving hard to come by, and so it wasn't until February 2008 when bassist Bunk joined that the band were truly and fully formed.

Combining technicality and groove with influences from the likes of SIKTH, PANTERA and MESHUGGAH, the band were convinced to recorded their debut EP with WellerHill Productions (Justin Hill and Dan Weller, formerly of SIKTH) after a direct invitation from the pair.

Although a relatively new band, SHY OF THE DEPTH have already notched up a raft of killer shows with the likes of PROFANE and SICKSTITCHES and are now booked for the upcoming MALEFICE UK tour in September.

Things are about to happen...
